Digital, Raytheon Plans Accorded Planner Approval

By Susan K. O'Neill

Tuesday night, the Planning Board gave favorable reviews to preliminary plans for major expansion projects proposed by Digital Equipment Corp. and Raytheon. The board's recommendations, which were requested by building department and are strictly advisory, leaned heavily on the issues of traffic control and landscape screening from residential neighbors.

According to John Crowe of John Crowe Associates, Belmont, who presented both site plans for review, Digital's planned Dascomb Road facility will comprise 450,000 square feet of space for office, manufacturing and warehouse uses. It will house an estimated 1,100 to 1,200 employees working a probable two shifts. The company hopes to begin land preparation for the project in September.

Asked if hazardous wastes will be used or stored in the building or on the 130 acre site, Crowe said that there would be a very small, protected room in which hazardous substances could be used, but there would be no storage on site. "In my understanding, this is a world-wide repair facility with a completely automated warehouse. It is not a chemical processing facility; it's testing and repair. Hazardous material is very, very limited and contained inside the building."

Principal Planner Nancy Jeton raised the issue of traffic in the area of the facility, which will be accessible from both Dascomb and Frontage roads. "This is a traffic area that is under close scrutiny," she said. "The bottom line is, it's pretty clear that we will need to install some mitigating measures." She said that these would probably include one or two traffic signals and a possible widening of Dascomb road where it serves the new project.

Because their expansion will exacerbate existing traffic problems, she said, it is the town's hope that companies such as Digital will participate in the study of the traffic situation and, ultimately, in the institution of measures to alleviate problems.

A representative from Digital indicated that the company would be willing to do so, if necessary.

Crowe balked at recommendations by the staff and the town Department of Public Works that the company extend a 12-inch water main 750 feet up Frontage Road to Osgood Street, and make an extra connection to the building at Frontage Road. Planner Laura Hill explained that the D.P.W. felt the extension would provide water service back-up in case of breakage at the Dascomb Roadline or connection.

According to Crowe, Digital officials did not feel the extension was absolutely necessary—but, he added, "We are aware of the recommendation; it's something for discussion."

Finally, staff recommended that Digital provide extra landscape screening in a "stump dump" site that is eventually slated to become a ballfield, because it will abut a planned residential development.

Ultimately, the board recommended that Digital be permitted to begin work at its own risk—pending an agreement on sewage particulars with the town of Tewksbury, which it borders—subject to a list of conditions including those discussed in the process of review.

In its review of Raytheon's proposed 120,000 square foot micro-mini electronics center, planned for the company's site off Osgood Street and Frontage Road, the board heard the traffic concerns of abutters from Christopher Koch of Osgood Street.

According to Koch, Raytheon had had a longstanding agreement that his street not be used by traffic from the company. Now, however, Koch said, "A major portion of traffic that gets onto Route 93 comes down Osgood." He maintained that Raytheon was still keeping some control over its traffic, but he was concerned, he said, that the new Digital facility would worsen the situation if that plant did not effect some form of agreed control.

Board Chairman Michael Houghton said that there seems to be no realistic approach to the Osgood Street traffic problem that would not restrict the road for the use of its own residents. "I'm frustrated," he said. "I just don't know a solution to that."

Koch also added that he hoped that Raytheon would supplement its screen of deciduous trees with evergreens, so the building would be screened from its

Subdivision Plan Gets Initial OK

Tuesday night, the Planning Board voted 5-0 to approve preliminary plans for "Glenn Magna," a 39-lot subdivision planned for 45 acres off Osgood Street.

In addition, the board unanimously approved definitive plans for "Doyle Circle," a three-lot subdivision slated for construction off Bailey Road.

The board also voted to rescind plan #1372, a 1971 proposal for a one-lot subdivision off Osgood Street, upon request by the lot's owner.

Finally, board members reviewed, and were satisfied with, progress on Phase III of the "Olympic Village" subdivision. Members agreed to disregard one of their earlier directives and allow developer Ed Patenaude to delay final applications of loam and seed on graded lots until homes are sold because, according to Patenaude, lots that are given such final touches without occupant-type care are subject to weed infestation and poor grass growth.

The board admonished the developer to have his final eight foundations in place and backfilled, with the land around them brought to grade, by its Oct. 14 meeting, when progress would again be reviewed.

The board's next meeting will take place in Memorial Auditorium on August 26 at 7:30 p.m.; a discussion of the proposed Dearborn moderate-income housing project is scheduled on that date for 8:30 p.m.

Voter Registration Dates Set

Andover voters are reminded to register for the Sept. 16 primary on Saturday, Aug. 16, at the Town Hall. Registration will take place at the Town Clerk's office from noon to 8 p.m.

A final sign-up session will be held Tuesday, Aug. 19, from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. It will be the last date for declaring or changing a party before the primary.

According to Town Clerk Elden Salter, voters who register as Independent may declare a party on the day of the vote, but they must re-declare as Independents afterward or they will remain on town lists under the party whose ballot they last voted. Voters unsure of their current status should contact the office of the Town Clerk.

Town Glass Drive This Saturday

Andover's monthly glass drive will be held this Saturday, Aug. 16, in the new town hall parking lot on Bartlet Street beside the park. Andover Recycling, Inc. volunteers will be on hand from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to assist anyone who needs help.

As always, only clear and green glass bottles and jars will be collected in the large metal bin provided by Dave White of North Atlantic Recycling Services. The division of the bin into two compartments, each clearly marked, makes it simple for the recycler to determine which color goes where.

Any questions about glass drives or paper pickup will be gladly answered by any of the recycling volunteers whose phone numbers are listed on the 1986-87 calendar which was mailed to all households in late spring. Extra calendars may be picked up at Andover Town Hall in the town clerk's office.

On Dean's List

Colleen Johnson, 8 Amherst Road, Andover, has been named to the Dean's List at Assumption College, Worcester, for the spring semester. The sophomore maintained a 3.8 average for the term.

ON YOUR FEET

Bunions are a common deformity of the Big Toe and the joint at the base of the big toe. The deformity is primarily caused by inherited bone structure and can be aggravated by shoe gear.

The problems associated with bunion deformities are usually a painful "bump" or enlargement on the inside of the foot at the base of the big toe and a deviated or crooked Big Toe that pushes against or under the second toe.

Correction of the deformity ranges from removal of the bump and realignment of the big toe, to more sophisticated procedures utilizing stainless steel screws. Following a thorough examination, we will discuss our findings and treatment modalities.

All these procedures are performed in the office operating room under local anesthesia. advances in operating techniques provide selection of the best procedure(s) and minimal post-operative discomfort.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

It's not news that parents talk baby-talk to babies, but did you ever notice that fathers talk to babies differently than mothers do, and both parents talk differently to girl babies than to boys? Fathers tend to talk in a high-pitched voice to little girls and a deep bass voice to little boys. Fathers turn their babies upside down, or engage in similar play while addressing them. Baby girls are usually dealt with more gently, both physically and verbally. From this combination of hardy handling and mock rough talk, perhaps boys are toughened up for the real world, while girls, being "dealt with more gently," are readied for vulnerability.

Tucker To Address Conference

Representative Sue Tucker will speak this week at the Massachusetts Teachers Association Leadership Conference at Williams College.

Tucker, vice-chair of the education committee, was asked to share her insight regarding education reform issues in Massachusetts, as well as other states.

"If America is to remain competitive in the world market, strategies for school improvement must begin in the individual classroom with the individual teacher," she stated.

The teaching profession is one of the central themes in the education reform debate: impending teacher shortage; professional standards and competencies; career ladders and merit pay; teacher training and salaries are all vitally important issues.

"The School Improvement Act of 1985 addressed a number of these items and also established a legislative commission to recommend strategies for improving the teaching profession and climate in Massachusetts," Tucker said. "My prediction is that our commission will put some dramatic proposals on the table next year and I look forward to sharing ideas with the teachers this week," she concluded.

Having The Home And Heart To Receive A Foster Child

By Susan K. O'Neill

Maria pokes a chubby finger at the camera, then pats it tentatively. "Can I do it?"

She is outgoing, inquisitive; a well-scrubbed and healthy four-year-old with the face of a Christmas card cherub. Her eyes are deep brown—not fire-pits of anger or hurt, but bottomless pools of questions.

A pretty child; a "normal" child. Which would make her a surprise to many people because, by her very appearance and bearing, she shatters the stereotypes. This little Maria—which is not her real name—is a foster child.

If Maria belies the image of the foster child as troubled, rag-tag waif, the woman into whose lap she crawls is also a far cry from the stern and perhaps witch-like stereotype of foster mother. Janice Caffray, divorced mother of two and foster mother of Maria and another baby, is a trim, attractive woman with a sense of humor, a mature outlook and a surprisingly normal social life.

For four years, Caffray has been a single mother to her own two children, Melissa (10) and Lauren (8), whom she adopted as infants. She has been a foster mother—one of fewer than six in Andover—for approximately seven months, opening her pink ranch-style home on Carriage Hill Road to a total of 11 children, boys and girls ranging in age from two weeks to 17 years. She has hosted as few as one and as many as four at one time; their stays have been as brief as one week, and as long as two-and-one-half months.

Her present two foster children have each been with her for six weeks.

"I got into it because I've always liked children," Caffray says simply, as she buzzes about her living room, retrieving a nursing bottle, handing it and the baby to Melissa. "Even when I was single, I had been a 'big sister' in Boston. I was considering having more children; I explored a number of options. For two years, I've been on the board of MSPCC (Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children). That's what convinced me to try foster parenting."

Even with her background, Caffray admits that becoming a foster parent was a "big step." Her friends were leary of the idea, as was her own mother. And her boyfriend—who, after three years, finally felt accepted by Caffray's own children, she reports—was less than enthusiastic about the possibility of dealing with more kids.

Now, however, Caffray reports that her friends and her mother, who lives in the area, are very supportive. As for her boyfriend—

There is a pile of photographs on Caffray's kitchen counter; picture after picture of Maria and the baby—the kind of photos a parent would take and pass around the room to a captive audience of visiting friends. Caffray's boyfriend took them on one of their recent outings.

"It's been very nice for my own children, too," she adds. "They've really become so caring about other people—" she nods toward Melissa, who is rocking her younger foster sister in a chair—"You can certainly see a lot of parenting skills here. Everybody has to co-operate; everybody has to share."

The neighborhood children, who congregate freely in the family room of the ranch, have also taken to her constantly-changing family. "It's so cute to see these little boys waiting to hold the babies," she says.

In short, says Caffray, "Once people see what it really is—once you see someone really doing it—it's terrific. It's the idea of it that's frightening to friends, relatives, neighbors. People think these are children that are strange."

Mynda Siskind, who works as a "home finder" with the Greater Lawrence area office of the Massachusetts Department of Social Services (D.S.S.), agrees that foster children often suffer from a bad—and untrue—image. "It's the label," she says. "They've always been stigmatized by it. They're just kids—who, but by the grace of God, could be your kids."

Although Caffray is enthusiastic about foster parenting, she admits it can be trying at times—or, as she puts it, "Nothing is terrific every day." There have been minor problems with the logistics of care, transportation, and scheduling that come with extra children. Like the time she couldn't find a sitter for her combined brood when had to attend a Boston board meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children—so she packed her charges into the car and brought them along.

She recalls the stir that her arrival, with entourage, caused among fellow board members. "If you tell people you're committed to the care of children, and you show up with three foster children, they know you're not kidding," she says with a shrug.

"The problems I see myself having are the same I would have as the biological mother of a family of six," she says. "The laundry; the housework. But," she adds, "nothing is more difficult because they're foster children."

Psychologically, too, foster parenting can be unsettling. Caffray feels that it is important to maintain a non-judgmental attitude toward a child's natural parents, and to avoid possessiveness.

"One thing you should say about foster care is that it's not a vehicle to adoption," she cautions. "People who've been given beautiful children like these, and they're thinking about adoption..." She glances at Maria, who is weighing the camera in her hands. "It shouldn't be your goal," she says. "You'd be disappointed a lot."

Caffray adds that dealing with foster children has sharpened her empathy for the natural mother's situation—which is often caused by sickness or a family breakup. "They're all mothers and women in the situation that anybody else could get into, but they don't have the help. I have a mother in town, a house, a washing machine—if I didn't have these things and had four children, I'd probably find myself on the doorstep of D.S.S."

Even so, Caffray admits that there have been times when she has faced a foster child and thought, "These children should go home to a different environment." But, she says, she resists the tendency to criticize: "I guess what I think is, 'This mother is trying very hard; it is her right to have her children.' My standards can't be everybody's standards. I try very hard to respect their rights."

She says that it helps to realize that the

Critique Gets Results

The Merrimack River Watershed Council's criticisms of Refuse Fuels' proposed construction of a 1,650 ton-per-day waste-to-energy plant and new landfill on the banks of the Merrimack River in Ward Hill helped to prompt the Massachusetts Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA) to issue strongly worded warnings to the facility's operator.

In a letter of certificate granting Refuse Fuels approval to continue in the licensing process, EOEA Secretary James Hoyte cited "bad housekeeping" practices at the present landfill on the Neck in Haverhill, as well as insufficient evidence of environmental soundness of both the present and proposed facilities as reasons for demanding a fuller report of the facility's technology.

Hoyte stated, "I am particularly concerned at allegations that the landfill is not properly covered, is plagued with gulls, emits odors and the like, indicating that housekeeping is unable to keep abreast of the tonnages being landfilled."

Neighborhood groups have been complaining for months of such problems, which seem to continue unabated.

The letter asked for a fuller accounting of how the proposed facility would impact air quality, water usage, wastewater discharge to the Haverhill City Sewer, as well as the visual impact on a typical user of the Merrimack River.

The proposed landfill expansion also drew fire. The letter questioned the 17-year site life expectancy, calling it "both questionable and more importantly, inadequate." Local critics claim that the landfill's accelerating growth occurs because tipping fees received from towns using the facility make it profitable to landfill the refuse rather than to process it as an energy source.

The landfill does have a synthetic liner designed to prevent contamination of deep groundwater sources, but Hoyte demanded measurement of con- liner. The collected leachate is trucked to the Haverhill Sewage treatment plant. (Continued on Page 18)

Foster Child

D.S.S. has a plan for each child and his or her family. So far, she says, "That plan has worked for me every time."

In most cases, according to Siskind, the plan is to reunite a foster child with its mother when she has had the treatment and/or education necessary to resume parenting. Upon doing so, the agency attempts to provide that parent with services necessary to keep the child in the home.

Contact between foster parents and natural mothers depends upon the situation and the discretion of the D.S.S. In most cases, natural parents may schedule visits with their children through the agency. Both Maria and the baby, who are not siblings, see their natural mothers about once a week.

"Maria looks forward to visiting her mother," says Caffray. "She likes it here; she likes her mother. I think it's harder for the mother to visit the child and give her up again afterward."

As for the baby, "The mother of the baby comes to visit, and a visiting nurse comes to help her learn parenting skills," she says. "She can call me anytime—and she does."

In cases where the D.S.S. considers a parent "inappropriate"—such as in cases of suspected child abuse—they are not allowed to visit. Nor are they permitted to know where the children have been placed.

Caffray says that the children for whom she has cared have seemed "normal" in spite of the upheaval in their home lives. "The children don't come kicking and crying," she says. "I don't know if I've just been lucky, or if the children I've had are typical." She adds candidly, "It's not as bad as I thought it would be."

Caffray considers it easier for her to be a single parent than it was being one of two. Her time is her own; her schedule is flexible. During the summer, she takes her whole family—children and foster children included—to stay in a condominium she and her mother own in Maine. She returns twice a week, as scheduled, to drop Maria and the baby off for their visits.

She maintains her own social life—including dating—and she is not hesitant to hire babysitters for the crowd. "You're not stuck in the house for your

Raytheon Makes Community Grants

Raytheon Company has announced community impact grants to 11 Lawrence nonprofit organizations. The grant package, the first of its kind by Raytheon in the Lawrence area, totals nearly $30,000 and covers a wide range of educational, social, business and cultural needs in the community.

At a luncheon held at Raytheon's Missile Systems Division facility in Andover, Janet C. Taylor, manager of corporate contributions, announced that the organizations to receive the grants are the Greater Lawrence Educational Collaborative, Lawrence Area Neighborhood Housing Services, Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce, Lazarus House, Northern Essex Community College, Centro Panamericano, Youth Entrepreneurial Development Project, Merrimack Valley Philharmonic Society, Museum of American Textile History, the Merrimack Valley Cuban Association and the Lawrence Latin Lions Club.

She said the grants represent the first time Raytheon has taken a comprehensive approach to making grants in a local community in order to have greater impact with its dollars. "Rather than dealing with requests one at a time without considering the interrelationships of both the problems and the programs at the local level, we wanted to take a close look at the community needs and begin to work more closely with the nonprofit agencies and the other corporate and foundation donors, Taylor explained. She said the company spent several months developing an understanding of the Lawrence community to identify opportunities for Raytheon involvement before making the grants.

William H. Swanson, plant manager for the Missile Systems Division facility in Andover, said "Raytheon truly believes in always lending a hand to assist worthy organizations and agencies such as these. Many of our employees have traditionally volunteered their time and service to the community as well. We're proud of their efforts. We hope our grants will encourage others to do the same."

Raytheon, headquartered in Lexington, is a diversified international company active in electronics, aviation, appliances, energy services, construction and textbook publishing. It is Massachusetts' largest industrial employer with some 31,000 of its more than 73,000 employees working in the state.

life," she says, "You just move on in your regular way, pretty much."

Caffray feels that she is fortunate—and probably unusual—in that she can maintain her lifestyle without an outside job. Her house is not sumptuous, but she can offer each foster child a bed of his or her own—including fold-up cribs for infants—within its three bedrooms. In part, this is possible because she is reimbursed by the D.S.S. for each child—"possibly to the break-even point."

Recently, she and her fellow foster parents were voted an increase in rates, effective this fall, from the current per-day stipends of $8.34 (children 0 to 12 years old) and $11.49 (13 years and up), to $12.04 and $14.44, respectively. Foster parents also receive a quarterly clothing allowance, which has not been increased, of $51 for the younger children and $68.75 for the older.

Even with the increase, foster parenting is not financially profitable. The new rates are based upon research that found that parents have had to pay extra money, out of pocket, beyond the former stipend to care for their foster children.

State D.S.S. officials admit that there are not enough foster homes available to comfortably fill the need for services. According to state statistics, approximately 6215 children are now being cared for in approximately 5,000 foster homes state-wide. There are at least 700 children on waiting lists throughout the commonwealth.

The Lawrence office receives approximately 50 references for placement of children of all ages and races in the Greater Lawrence area—Andover, North Andover, Lawrence and Methuen—per month. Approximately 25 to 30 are placed; they stay with their foster families for varying lengths of time (state figures place the median length of stay at 15 months, with 25 percent of children averaging six months or less).

Because of shortages of foster homes in town, Andover children among these statistics are often unable to find local placement—which is usually desirable because it keeps them in their own school systems, says Mynda Siskind. "I've had to place Andover children in other communities," she says. "It is not advantageous."

Says Pam Abernathy, program development specialist for the Greater Lawrence area office of the D.S.S., "One of the problems is that people think that what we do doesn't apply to Andover—it's a big-city problem. I have a computer printout here that shows that we have 112 people in Andover that we provide services to, of one kind or another." Those services consist primarily of family counseling and foster care, she says.

She estimates that D.S.S. could use 20 additional homes in Andover to function smoothly.

According to Siskind, the path to foster parentage is not difficult for those who are interested—traditional families, single parents and, when appropriate, singles who are not parents. The agency puts them through an intensive ten week Professional Parenting course, featuring weekly three-hour workshops (which is compulsory for both parents in two-parent homes). During their training period, the would-be foster parents are investigated by the department for approval. "We study the people, and the people get to know themselves," explains Siskind. "At the end of the ten-week period, these people know if they want to go through with foster parenting—and we know if they're appropriate."

Placement can follow quickly—for Caffray, the call came the day after she'd completed the MAPP program, when she was offered placement of a pair of 20-month-old twins and their two-year-old sibling. "They thought they'd see if the course would work out as well as they'd hoped it would," she says with irony.

The placement went smoothly, she adds.

Siskind stresses that every attempt is

The Merrimack River Watershed Council fears that some microtoxins will either pass into the river partially treated or will have to be handled at great expense at the Haverhill Treatment Plant in the form of toxic sludge. The Watershed Council views the Merrimack River as it flows around the Neck in Haverhill as a prime fishing and recreational resource, as well as an important site for future Haverhill Water Supply.

Richard F. Barney

To Chair Campaign

Richard F. Barney, an Andover resident from 1957 through 1980, has accepted the position of campaign chairman for the Merrimack Valley United Fund's 1986-87 campaign.

Barney is vice president of marketing for Union National Bank. He served as the Greater Lowell United Fund chairman for 1984-85 and previously served on the board of directors for the Andover Y.M.C.A. and Lawrence Y.M.C.A. He also served as treasurer of the Girl Scouts.

Barney now resides in Marblehead. He is married and has three children.

Foster Child

made to match the child or children to the parents and their home situation. Caffray, for example, has requested siblings, when possible, and younger children. "Teenagers don't work out for me; I don't know why," she says. "I realized it upon my application. I did have one short-term emergency placement who was a teenager, and that did work out—but it reinforced my feelings."

She adds that the decision to take the teenager in was hers.

In its initial placement call, the D.S.S. describes the children in question as fully as possible. "Certainly, they tell you the truth about the child," says Caffray. "Nobody tries to fool you. If somebody knows there's a problem, they tell you."

The potential parent is allowed the right to refuse a placement. The department also honors a foster parent's request to take a break from parenting. Caffray took two weeks off this year between placements for an out-of-state vacation.

Some area foster homes are appropriate for the placement of only one child at a time, says Siskind; others will take more. The number is determined by the parent and the D.S.S.

Caffray advises those who would consider foster parenting to discuss the concept well with their families and spouses before calling the D.S.S. (which is listed under "Massachusetts, commonwealth of" in the phone directory). She also advises potential applicants to assess their motives and their lifestyles. "I am happy with the other things in my life," she says. "I can get up every day and do this. I want to stay home and parent. But I don't think it's for everyone."

Siskind, however, hopes it is an appealing choice for about 20 more families or individuals in Andover. The need is great; children like Maria are waiting. Somewhere, she feels, there are Andover people who—like Janice Caffray—have the time, the home and the heart to receive them.

Completes Training

Steven E. Swiniarski, son of Edward and Danielle Swiniarski, 326 Campbell Road, North Andover, has completed training in fundamental military skills at the Army ROT challenge camp, formerly Basic camp, at Fort Knox, Ky.

The Challenge camp is designed to give college juniors and sophomores who have not taken ROTC courses the chance to enter the program. The camp also qualifies high school graduates for the ROTC program at any of the nation's six military junior colleges.

Cadets received training in basic rifle marksmanship, military drill and ceremonies, communications and individual and small unit tactics.

Swiniarski plans to enter the ROTC program at Salem State.

Leonardo Da Vinci is believed to have invented the scissors.

Workshop

Massachusetts Audubon Society will offer a four-part workshop on nature photography at the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield on three Wednesday evenings, beginning August 27, with a Saturday field trip to try out techniques learned.

Topics to be covered include film types, field problems, lenses, meters, blinds and knowing your camera. There will be slides to illustrate subjects. Participants must have access to and knowledge of a 35mm camera.

At The Playgrounds

On Monday papier-mache masks were made on the faces of some daring participants like Stephanie Cinelli and Paul Allard. When they were dry they were painted colorfully. Tuesday was sunny for a trip to Crane's Beach and a sand castle building contest. Some who went were Cate Williamson, Lisa and Amy Evans, Randy and Tony Morando and Kevin O'Brien. Pizza and coke were ordered out on Wednesday. Felicity, Amy Morse and Kristin Murphy enjoyed snacking. All-star hockey between Doherty and Bancroft ended with a Bancroft win 17-6. The Fitathalon was fun-filled with Billy and Heather doing the licorice whip. Friday (Hawaiian Day) and the luau brought many colorful clothes like those of Alice Noel and Karen Bruno.

Doherty

Doherty's sixth week kicked off with a rousing game of softball, newcomer John Zimmer was one of the excellent players. Colorful party hats were the next hit of the day. By using construction paper, beads and elastic string, some wild hats were made by Mark Cutler, Susan Cookson and Leslie Campion.

Tuesday was a wonderfully beach day, enjoyed by all the Crane's beachers who helped Andover develop its "summer fads" theme. The Doherty crew worked on giant sunglasses and a high-top sneaker, including Jason Twombly, Peter Cookson, Jenny Ortiz, Katie Merrill and Danielle Smith. A handful of us biked to Bancroft on Wednesday for a rematch in floor hockey, yet once again we couldn't take a lead. Goals were scored by Jason T., Leslie and Cheryl. Jason C. played very well.

Doherty participated in Fitathalon events such as clothes race, three-legged race and orange pass. Doherty on air amazed everyone as Jason Twombly, Mark Cutler, Leslie Campion, Brian Cutler and Jason Cupp rocked with 'jump.'

Sanborn

This sixth week at Sanborn School was fun as usual. Monday was movie day. Julie, Abby, Amy, Susan, Amanda, Lisa, Katie, Viki, Tim, Andy and Phil enjoyed watching their airbands that were taped the week before. They also watched "The Outsiders" while enjoying popcorn and juice. Tuesday they went to Crane's Beach with the other schools and had a great time building sand castles. On Wednesday they picked names for secret Santa and practiced their airbands for the Fitathalon on Thursday which was a great success. Friday was the best. We had Christmas and Chanukah in August and everyone exchanged gifts and found out who their Santa was. Karyn H. got a beautiful necklace from Cindy E., Spaz D. got rock pins and candy from Dribs, Jack got some nice blue dice to hang from the mirror on his car, thanks to Rodney. Aimee R. got candy from Susan H., Katie M. got a nice necklace from Julie C., Lisa, Susan and Beaver got money towards the ice cream man.

with a rousing game of hockey. The dominating players were Julie Conners, Rocky Tradd, Marc Escott, Ryan Evans and Peter Ellis. Later everyone joined in a fun game of bombardment. South had fun in the sun at Crane's Beach on Tuesday. Everyone made a high-top sneaker, part of the summer fad sand castle theme. Some of the sand castle builders were Jen Aylward, Michelle and Suzanne Doucette, Shira and Abby Hermosa, Rick Krispo, Nick Zammoto and Amy Kenny. Wednesday was a busy day. Some of the who took part in papier-mache were Chris Lustig, Abbi and Shira Hermosa and Jackie Tommasino. Peter Ellis, Marc Escott, Amy Kenney and Julie Boland won a watermelon-eating contest. The making of marshmallow men rounded out the day. All the playgrounds spent Thursday competing in head-to-head competition. The air-band contest finished the day. Our "bangels" participants were Kristi Connor, Carolyn Casdia, Jackie Escott and last minute replacement Jen Aylward. Friday was mixed Hawaiian/McDonald's Day.

West Elementary

This sixth week of playground started out with a huge game of soccer where Mark Selvetelli, Kevin Barry and Amy Cohen excelled. On Tuesday the playground took a trip to Crane's Beach to compete in a sand castle building contest. The best sand castlers were Adam Ferny, Jeremy and Angela Ren and Eric and Jan Begg. Wednesday we tie-dyed t-shirts with many colors such as red, yellow and green. Awesome t-shirts were made by Christine Apignese, Sarah Benoit, Cameron Arnolt and David Charland.

Thursday we all traveled to Sanborn School for a Fitathalon and all-school cookout. This ended with an airband contest where our famous "Air-heads" performed. Friday we had pajama day with doughnuts and orange juice and a high pillow fight.

Ha-Kow-Wee

It as finally sunny the whole day on Monday and the Ha-Kow-Wee tribe celebrated by playing in the sunshine. We had a great kickball game and started making pinatas. We also spent time at Pumps Pond swimming and canoeing. Shanna Willner and Kramer O'Neil enjoyed the canoeing. On Tuesday we played with clay making frogs, caterpillars, bulls eyes and more. Kathy O'Neil, Craig Hartwell and Cindy Berry created black magic drawings. Afterwards we enjoyed ice cream treats from Cronins. Some of the tribe went to Crane's Beach for the annual sand castle building contest: Shanna Willner, Jason Shaw, Danny Martineau, Tara Patenaude, Jennifer Msumba, Jeffrey Irvine, Evan and Kelly Gerguson. Christie and Carrol Cunningham, Jennifer and Stephanie Buck and Vikki Bilwakesh helped build a giant pair of "sand castle" jams, high-top sneaker and more.

On Wednesday we went to Rose Glen dairy on a bike hike. Matt Perrault loved the ice cream at the end of the ride. Jeffrey Smith and Brian Blouin worked hard on their pinatas while Brad Belisle had fun riding his bike on the all-terrain court.

Thursday was the all-playground fitathalon. The Ha-Kow-Wee tribe was awesome. Cara En-dike and Courtney Cunningham won first place in the egg toss. Ben Perralt won the obstacle course and the shaving cream squirt gun contest. They are only a few of the many winners. The afternoon was dubbed Halloween Day. Eddy Patenaude dressed as a western cowboy. Bernie and Judith Vajda enjoyed the haunted house, apple bobbing and more.

The fun continued on Friday with the weekly cookout and fun at Pumps Pond. The highlight of the day was the breaking of the pinata.

Shawnee

The Shawnee had a very full week. On Monday Judd Shapiro and Gregory Denis led the group on a nature walk to a small wood where Julie Barenholtz, Alissa Smith, Christopher Page and Sam Dodd collected samples of nature. Ashley Bamford, Laura Brown and Elsa Malmberg made super paperbag puppets. On Tuesday, Olympic day, Kevin Hess was the track star winning the sprint and long-distance running races. April Betty won the hula hoop event while Michael Burton kicked the ball farthest in the ball kicking event. Irene Chin took first place in the obstacle course. All in all everyone did very well in all of the events. Troy Larusso, Roger Cohen and Ben Golub made sand castles and tunnels. Robert Heitz, Jared Greer and Kristine Kirwin made adorable dough Lupie figures which were cooked and decorated on Friday. Thursday was Christmas, Chanukah Day for everyone. Everyone exchanged gifts around the tree and sang Christmas Carols. Suzanne Dalby and Lindsey Pearson made sparkle drawings while everyone helped make decorations for the tree. Unfortunately, Friday's weather rained out our sprinkler day, but we still had plenty of fun.

Shee-Hee

The sixth week at Shee-Hee playground has been an exciting one. Things were bright on Monday, but a bit messy as we did potato printing. Mike Wallace and Michael Zizzo really enjoyed this activity. We took advantage of the sunny weather on Tuesday by taking a nature walk around the school. Jessica Coyne, Sean Lawton, Elyse Herson, Elena Weinreb and Sarah Cote had a great time collecting leaves, flowers and sticks. Another sunny day on Wednesday had us involved in a castle building contest. Joh Herling, Evan Sideman, John Keaton and Elizabeth Lerman built terrific castles. All the children received awards for their great work. Thursday was Christmas/Chanukah in August. We decorated the tree, exchanged gifts and read story books about the holidays.

Pennacook Park

It has been a full last week at Pennacook Park. Monday found the campers making paper plate fish. The campers found unique designs in their spaghetti paintings on Tuesday. Each camper explored his imagination by interpreting their own pictures. Wednesday found them swimming at Pumps Pond. Thursday was show off for parents day. Parents and siblings came to a cookout put on by the campers, listened to a wonderful rendition of "Frosty the Snowman," "It's a Small World" and "Puff the Magic Dragon" after which the parents toured the arts and crafts exhibit and were impressed by the children's hard work and creativity. The week was wrapped up on Friday with Karen making chocolate chip ice cream. After swimming we celebrated Toniann's birthday with cake and popples and closed the day with a game of Seven Up.

Sebell Is Named Team Leader

In a move that will enhance its capabilities in the burgeoning area of new product and service development, Synectics, Inc., the Cambridge-based international innovation management and consulting firm, has announced the formation of a new product commitment team and the promotion of Mark Henry Sebell of Andover to team leader.

The team's goal is to help client companies grow through successful development of innovative new products. Sebell and his team will assist clients in all stages of product and service development, from trend analysis and innovation sessions to idea refinement and sorting, to consumer testing and naming. The new product team will also aid clients in managing organizational commitment to the development, testing and launch of product ideas.

Formation of this team comes at a time when recent studies indicate that most major companies are planning to achieve 25 percent or more of their volume growth through new products. Yet, paradoxically, about eight out of 10 new products still fail in the marketplace.

Synectics' strategy is to increase the probability of success by utilizing their proven techniques in problem-solving, creative thinking and innovation management. Synectics has helped in the development of new products for a diverse group of clients, including Gillette, General Electric, Pitney Bowes, Best Foods and American Express.

Now, under Sebell's guidance, the new product commitment team is concentrating its efforts and expanding its resources to provide clients with the fullest possible array of new product development services.

Sebell, a former senior associate and director of account development at Synectics, has spent much of his career working in the new products field. Prior to joining the firm, he spent ten years in advertising and packaged goods marketing with Colgate-Palmolive, Carter-Wallace and the William Underwood Company. In his four years at Synectics, he has spearheaded the effort in new product and service development, one of the firm's strengths since it was founded in 1960.

Sebell holds an economics degree from Colgate University and an M.B.A. from the University of Michigan.

Concert Tribute To Collins

Singers' Workshop, summer home of The Treble Chorus of New England, will present its culminating concert at South Church on Saturday, Aug. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary. The concert is open to the public and a free will offering will be taken to benefit the choir and the church-organ fund. The concert is dedicated to the late J. Everett Collins, who often attended the choir's concerts and was a strong advocate for the organization.

The concert will include music in four languages, including works by Britten, Vaughan Williams, Osawa, Brahms, Handel and Purcell. Featured at this year's workshop will be solos and duets from "The Marriage of Figaro." Joe Olefirowicz of Methuen plays Figaro; Alyssa Sullivan of Andover plays Susanna; Anneliese Schumm of North Andover plays Cherubino; Mary Ellen Driscoll of Andover plays the Countess; and Cheryl Hartford of Wilmington plays Marcellina. The choir hopes to perform portions of this opera in the coming season for public and private schools who would like their students to know more about opera.

Supported by a recent grant from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery as distributed by the North Andover Arts Council, the 68 singers, ages 7-16, come from 11 communities in the Greater Merrimack Valley.

Founded 11 years ago in North Reading by its artistic director, Marie Stultz, the choir will learn a rigorous bulk of music of all centuries and countries. New this year is a boys changed voice section that will continue in the fall. Any young male singers who would like to improve their singing skills and sing with other young men their own age should contact Stultz for further information. Joining Stultz on the staff will be Richard Stultz (Masters in Sacred Music at S.M.U.) music assistant to the choir since its inception, teaching theory and ensemble; Karin Kohl (Masters in Musicology at B.U.), music assistant for six years, teaching theory and ensemble; David Tiedman (Masters in Organ and Harpsichord performance at S.M.U., currently in a master's program in conducting at N.E.C.) theory teacher and working with the boys changed voices; Anne Gardner (Masters in Vocal Performance at B.U.), voice teacher; and Aki Shimazu, concert pianist and faculty accompanist for the New England Conservatory Preparatory Division. Jean Thomases of Reading is the summer camp administrator and chorus manager.

The Treble Chorus of New England is supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council of the Arts and Humanities, a matching award from NEBS and Digital Corporation and awards from the Andover, North Andover and Tewksbury Arts Councils.

The first business collegiate school in the United States was the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance, established in 1881 by the University of Pennsylvania. A $100,000 gift from Joseph Wharton made it possible.

Andover Tailoring will be closed Saturdays from June 28 to the end of September. For the convenience of our customers, we will stay open until 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday evenings.

Heritage Festival In Lawrence

Calling it "the biggest thing to hit Lawrence since 1912," a group planning a major festival for Labor Day in downtown Lawrence held a press conference Wednesday to announce their plans. The Bread and Roses Heritage Festival will feature several events, all free to the public.

The day will begin with an international folk festival on Campagnone Common. Folk Arts Network director Steve Baird explained that four themes will be woven throughout the festival site: fiddle music, children's entertainment, ethnic folk arts and labor arts.

The Northeast Fiddlers Convention will feature fiddle music in several styles, including Scottish, Irish and Yankee String Band.

The ethnic diversity of this "city of immigrants" will be highlighted on two stages and in four workshop areas. Some 50 musicians, storytellers and craftspeople will be featured, representing the city's Asian, Hispanic, Middle Eastern, Irish and French-Canadian communities.

A labor stage will present music and stories from the labor movement past and present, in honor of the 75 anniversary of the Bread and Roses strike.

International food, stories, songs and dance will round out the morning.

A grand finale on the banks of the Merrimack River will feature folksingers Tom Rush, Ronnie Gilbert and others, capped off by fireworks over the river.

Park planner Dianne Haynes described the new Lawrence Heritage State Park, which Governor Michael Dukakis will dedicate in a ceremony at 3:30 p.m. that afternoon. The park's theme, a City of Workers, is reflected in the center's new exhibits as well as in the day's activities marking the opening. Historian Carrie Poirier described the exhibit "Lawrence Through the Eyes of an Artist." Sponsored by the Immigrant City Archives, the exhibit will open at the Visitor's Center that day.

John Corliss, Jr., director of the Bread and Roses Heritage Committee, outlined his organization's plans for a year-long celebration of the historic Bread and Roses Strike of 1912. In addition to the festival, "The Year of the Worker" is slated to feature multi-cultural festivals, conferences, art exhibits, tours and the recreation of historical events.

Banners

"Bisgrove Banners, a designer's evolution from clothes to flags" opens Friday, Aug. 22, at the Sam Sargent Gallery at the Newburyport Art Association, 65 Water St., from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. The public is invited. The show is open daily from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. from Saturday, Aug. 23, to Thursday, Aug. 28.

For the past year and a half, Carole Bisgrove and her husband have operated a business in Newburyport, making custom flags, banners and windsocks. Many Bisgrove banners have been commissioned by businesses as signs and 11 Massachusetts Heritage State Parks have Bisgrove banners.

The works in the show include modular clothing with interchangeable, graphic decorations, paintings and flags and banners.

CALCULATING VENTILATION

The Home Ventilating Institute has issued some recommendations for adequate ventilation. Fifteen air changes per hour are needed in the kitchen, eight in the bathroom, and six per hour in the family, recreation and laundry rooms. To calculate the size of exhaust fan needed to achieve these figures, the kitchen floor space should be multiplied by two. The bath floor space should be multiplied by 1.07, and the family, recreation and laundry rooms by 0.08. A kitchen with 100 square feet thus requires a fan with a capacity of 200 cubic feet per minute. One's own habits or needs may add to the humidity problem and increase the ventilation requirements.

Baker's Meadow Pond is surrounded by conservation lands owned and maintained by AVIS, the Andover Village Improvement Society. The organization is currently working on trail clearing at Baker's Meadow and two other reservations to improve access and increase use by Andover residents.

Conservation Land Improved

The Andover Village Improvement Society (AVIS) is cleaning up the trails on some of their conservation lands to improve accessibility for the residents of Andover.

According to AVIS president Nat Smith, a professor at Phillips Academy, the organization is doing the work because it is land "open to the public...that we don't pay taxes on," so it is expected that they will maintain the trails properly. Smith sees the conservation lands as "part of the reason Andover is so attractive" to potential and current residents.

AVIS's goal is to clear trails to span six feet wide and 10 to 15 feet high so that horses can pass through and cross-country skiers can use the trails in the winter.

Smith stated that the organization has hired three men to clear trails in the Harold Rafton, Baker's Meadow, and Deer Jump Reservations. The trails in the Harold Rafton Reservation, three or four miles worth, have already been cleared. Two of the workers hired, Jay Camire, a senior in Natural Resource Management at Essex Agricultural

School, and Scott Smith, are presently working under David Dargie, AVIS trustee in charge of land management, on the trails in Baker's Meadow which total about two miles.

Also hired by the organization is Derek Brucato who will also be involved in the group's current efforts. Deer Jump Reservation is next, and for now, last, on the list to have trails cleared.

On rainy days, the employees work on routing and painting signs and making trail maps to post at entrances. With recent inclement weather, they have been able to complete between 50 and 60 signs and maps.

The group has also hired a contractor to rebuild bridges that are "not entirely safe" according to Smith. These bridges will be made "motorcycle-proof" by installing what some would call a step on each side of the bridges.

All this work, according to Smith, is financed by fees paid by the organization's 600 members and the return on investments made by the group with money gifts bequeathed to them.

Orientation

Orientation week will begin for new students at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston on Sunday, Aug. 24.

New students will begin moving into campus housing at Baker Hall at noon, followed by an orientation and reception for parents at 2 p.m. in Watson Auditorium.

Registration will continue for first-year students on Wednesday, Aug. 27, and upperclass students will register on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 28 and 29.

Family Fun Day at Poms Pond

On Sunday, Aug. 10, Andover families gathered at Poms Pond for an afternoon of music, fun and games under the clouds—which, luckily, did nothing more than threaten. Adults and children of all ages toted ping-pong balls through the water on plastic spoons, ran sponge relays, did what Simon said, and tapped their toes to the music of a top-notch Dixieland band from Greater Lawrence Musicians Local 372. Photos, clockwise from upper left: Adam Turbette displays his siblings' awards; Biff Moriarty takes his son Kellen for a spin in the pond; lifeguards Scott Brink and Laura Cervone try to catch the remaining contestants in "Simon Says"; Tony Tripley whistles while he drums, accompanied by Jazz Marino on bass and Jim Forzese on guitar; Joan Emmert enjoys the band and the sun; Justin LoRusso gets a pre-game hug from sponge relay teammate (and father) Vinnie LoRusso; Is it a whale? No; it's spouting Kaitlin Hayes; Martha Busby and son Kevin watch the relays.

New Cantor At Temple Emanuel Blends Traditional With Modern

By Susan K. O'Neill

Tradition—it permeates the very fabric of Judaism, surfacing for view in the rites, the food prohibitions; in the rituals and holidays.

And in the music.

There are those who feel that tradition is everything to Jewish music. There are others, however, who feel that the traditional music featured in Jewish culture and ceremony could profit from the influence of newer songs—songs written and/or sung by singers who walk the modern roads of Israel, Europe and, yes, the United States.

Such philosophical debate on the virtues of tradition versus modernization in Jewish music is bread and butter to Donn Rosensweig. He is the cantor for Temple Emanuel in West Andover.

Throughout the centuries, the cantor has been the keeper of his culture's most sacred traditional music, a soloist who embellishes the services with the hazzanut, or traditional chant. Nowadays, in modern temples such as Temple Emanuel, he often finds himself the leader of music for a congregation whose younger members enjoy and appreciate the music of this last century.

The duality presents a challenge—one that Rosensweig is uniquely equipped to meet.

Rosensweig, who took the full-time position early in July, replacing cantor Norman Brody, is a man of 40 who appears younger in spite of the beard he grew, he admits, to add maturity to his face. He has studied traditional cantorial chant in the country's oldest school of Sacred Music. He has also sung in folk groups, and has a distinctly "60's" love for the folk music that the more traditionally-minded call "camp tunes."

"Some say 'camp tunes' are saving the services," he says. "Others say, yes, but what does this have to do with the traditions we've maintained over the centuries? Like Tevye in 'Fiddler on the Roof,' I can say, 'You're right—and you're right.' I see value in both sides." The cantor pauses, collecting his thoughts. "I hope to blend all of these things—folk music, traditional music and some of the more esoteric Hazzanut."

The reference to theatre is an apt one for Rosensweig; he has worn a number of hats since his first yarmulke, including that of an actor.

In fact, he has only been a cantor for seven years.

Rosensweig grew up in Pennsylvania, the son of parents who were "not extremely observant" of their religion. "My grandparents took me to services every week," he says. "It was a conservative congregation; services lasted about two and one-half hours on Saturday mornings. But it was not a hardship for me. I loved it; I loved our cantor—his music, his voice. By the age of Bar Mitzvah, I knew the whole service."

Being a cantor, however, did not seem like "the sort of thing a Jewish boy does for a living," he says. "I didn't view it as a profession." Instead, he studied at Hobart College in Geneva, New York, received his M.A. in teaching from Oberlin College in Ohio, married a fellow Oberlin student, and moved to Cleveland, Ohio. There, he taught English.

He and his wife, Ruth, later moved to Allentown, Pa., where, once again, he worked as a teacher. But he was not content; after a few years, he decided it wasn't what he wanted to do in life.

He had enjoyed hours in front of the footlights as a child, acting in his mother's community theatre group; he had sung in folk groups in high school and had worked in a dance band in college. He decided, now, to try performing on a larger stage—so he moved to New Jersey in the early 1970s to be near to New York City.

While Ruth worked as a medical librarian, Rosensweig threw himself into his prospective craft. He studied acting under Lee Strasburg and others, trained his tenor singing voice, and performed "on Broadway; off Broadway, and off-off-off the edge of the world."

Such work is seldom steady. "After five years, it became clear to me that I wasn't going to become a star," he says. "I wasn't even going to make a living."

So Rosensweig, who says he did most of the cooking for the family, decided to become a chef. For a year or so, he cooked in a New Jersey restaurant—and he learned a bit more about himself. "I found out that that also was not where I was going to spend my life," he says.

Meanwhile, he was performing as a member and a soloist in the choir in his small New Jersey congregation. The cantor left; he was asked to fill in.

"I loved it. It drew on my love of music, my teaching ability, my performing, in a sense—it seemed as if all the various threads of my life were pulled together in a wonderful way," he recalls.

At this time, he also discovered that the cantor he had admired so thoroughly when he was a boy happened to be working in a nearby temple in New York. Rosensweig commuted, studying with him whenever possible for about two years.

He applied for, and attained, the position of cantor at a larger temple, serving Washington Township in New Jersey, where the job was full-time and he could actually make a living at it.

The time had come to make a commitment to the profession. "I decided that the eclectic way of learning I was going through was not enough," he says. He entered the School of Sacred Music in New York, part of the Hebrew Union College and the Jewish Institute of Religion.

He graduated a year ago with a bachelor degree in Sacred Music and was officially invested as a cantor.

In New Jersey, Rosensweig's congregation numbered 400 families—"and was not growing," he adds. This year, he learned of the opening at Temple Emanuel, a growing congregation of approximately 600 families.

Cantor Donn Rosensweig

"My wife and I had kind of fantasized about moving to this area," he says. "In a sense, it's moving toward family." Although her family originally lived in Ohio, four of Ruth's five siblings now live in the Boston area, and her parents spend their summers in Portland, Me.

So Rosensweig applied for the position.

Now, he and Ruth and the children—Matthew, 3½, and Daniel, 1—have settled into their new home in West Andover. Rosensweig sits behind the desk in the cantor's office of Temple Emanuel, surrounded by folding chairs; this fall, they will be occupied by choir members, or by children from the Hebrew class.

He is a man who is looking forward to his work. "The cantor before me, as I understand it, created a 'singing congregation,'" he says. It's a congregation, he says, that mixes traditionalists and young people with more modern tastes.

He warms to the subject, a teacher; a performer. "We've got people coming from all sides," he says. "The challenge to a cantor is to appeal to all sides—not just cater to whims. It is to bring people from all sides to appreciate both the new and the traditional."

Rally Day Scheduled At Church

Final plans are being made at the Ballard Vale United Church (a United Methodist and United Church of Christ congregation) for Rally Day, Sunday, Sept. 7, and start of the fall term for the church school. This year classes will be offered for young children, elementary grades 1-3, 4-6 and an adult class on Sunday mornings. The overall theme for children is "We are God's People." A class for youth will be held Wednesday evenings, and in light of the concern over drug abuse, Gary S. Cornell, pastor, will offer a course entitled "Alcohol, Drugs, Tobacco and Your Life." United Methodist curriculum resources will be used in all classes. In addition, there will be programming for junior high and senior high youth, young adults and family activities. Parents wishing to enroll children in the various church school programs may call the church office.

The Sacrament of Holy Baptism will be celebrated at this Sunday's 10 a.m. family service. The pastor's preaching message is "Baptism, the Sign of the Cross," based on the words of Jesus in Luke 12:49-56. A time of fellowship will follow the service and light refreshments will be served.

The first newspaper printed on a train was the Weekly Herald, a single sheet, printed on both sides. It was issued by Thomas Alva Edison and the first known issue was dated Port Huron, Michigan, February 3, 1862.

J. Everett Collins

J. Everett Collins, a man known as one of Andover's most distinguished citizens for his contributions to both the musical and community life of the town, died August 8 at Prescott House Nursing Home in North Andover. He was 92.

Mr. Collins, who served as selectmen for 20 years and on the school committee for six, was the founder of the Andover Choral Society and the Andover Male Choir. He conducted the society's yearly presentation of Handel's "Messiah" every Christmas for more than 50 years.

In appreciation of his long and generous music career, the town dedicated and named its Center for the Performing Arts after Mr. Collins in 1983.

Born in Andover on April 27, 1894, he began his career in music as a boy soloist at Christ Church in 1906, and later sang as a boy alto at several of Boston's famous Episcopal churches. Between 1912 and 1923, he performed as soloist at South Church; he served as choir director and soloist at South from 1923 to 1929.

For the next 50 years, he directed the choir at First Calvary Church in Lawrence.

In 1926, Mr. Collins organized the Andover Male Choir. Three years later, he founded the Andover Choral Society. For several years, he assisted with music programs at Andover High School and West Junior High. He served as choral consultant in the Andover Public Schools since 1963. A music scholarship was established in his name by the First Calvary Baptist Church in 1978, to be awarded yearly to a graduating senior of Andover High School or a member of that church for excellence in music.

During his youth, Mr. Collins excelled in sports as well as music. He was a star athlete in school and, later, an avid fan of Puncard and Andover High School athletics. In 1984, he was awarded a varsity letter from the high school and was inducted into the school's Athletic Hall of Fame—which made him the first individual to achieve both that honor along with membership in the school's Music Hall of Fame.

In addition to the dedication of the Collins Center, Mr. Collins also received public recognition for his many years of service to his community—his long tenure as selectman, and his service on the school committee, as town assessor, and as a state representative (1941-1954). In 1955, he was appointed to the board of review of the State Division of Employment Security; he later served as president of the board.

Mr. Collins worked as an auditor for Kemper Insurance

August Artist

The pencil drawing of Ted Haykal are on display during August at Memorial Hall Library. Haykal, who lives on Peaks Island, Maine, grew up in Andover and attended Andover schools. He says of his work, "I use soft pencils and try to translate the personality of my subjects onto the paper. My aim is not only to catch a perfect likeness, but an attempt to capture some of the soul so that the drawing is strong enough to generate life and breath." His portraits of people and pets, now hanging in the library, attest to his ability to do just that.

A Party!

A party to celebrate the end of the Children's Room summer reading program, "Track Down a Mystery," will be held in the library hall on Thursday, Aug. 14, at 2 p.m. All children who participated in the library's reading program are invited for a brief ceremony, refreshments and the opportunity to pick up charts and certificates of achievement. Routine Petitions Under Study By Zoning Board

By Karen L. Day

When the Zoning Board of Appeals held public hearings on five petitions, Thursday, Aug. 7, three were relatively uncomplicated and one was withdrawn at the last minute, when the petitioner asked for an extension.

The petition of Brian and Ann Linehan, regarding property on the Glenwood Road Extension, is the subject of a separate article in this issue of the TOWNSMAN.

John J. and Nancy L. Cronin, 24 McKenney Circle, petitioned the board for a variance from the zoning bylaw to allow the continued existence of a family room which does not meet minimum rear yard setback requirements.

Before Cronin spoke about his request, board member Ernest Hall asked that he not be included on the board for this particular case. Jane Griswold, acting chairman of the board, asked Cronin if he would object to having a four member board since no alternates were available. Cronin stated that it would be fine with him. When the board consists of only four members, the decision must be unanimous, while with a five member board, one member may cast a dissenting vote.

No one could quite figure out why Hall removed himself from the case until Cronin began to explain the circumstances surrounding the construction of the addition.

Cronin's father had owned the home in 1978 when the porch was enclosed, and thus became an additional room on the house, now a playroom. He obtained a permit for the enclosure and hired Hall to do the building. But when Cronin attempted to sell the home in April, he found that there was no record of a permit issued for the addition, so he was unable to sell the home. He now has another interested buyer, but he is required to settle the matter at hand before he can actually sell the house. He stated that it would bring financial hardship to lose the interested buyer and/or to be forced to remove the additional structure which has been in place for eight years.

Gary T. Stitham, 1 Hacienda Way, petitioned for a variance to allow the installation of an in-ground pool which will not meet minimum front yard setback requirements. Stitham explained to the board that there are two possible sites on his property for the pool, one of which is classified as wetlands. He has already had a petition to the Andover Conservation Commission approved, but he prefers the site he is petitioning the ZBA for. Since it will cost him seven or eight thousand dollars more to install the pool on the Conservation Committee approved site, he stated that it is a case of financial hardship.

Michael Famiglietti, 3 Hacienda Way, asked about landscaping and the grading of the yard. Although he had no objection to the idea of the pool, Famiglietti was concerned about water drainage into his yard. Stitham explained that "we don't intend on changing the contour of the yard...we chose the dryer areas the farthest point from the wetlands." It was also explained that all excavated material would be removed from the land, so there would be no change in drainage.

Steven and Madelyn Mitton, 53 Gould Road, requested a variance to allow an addition to their home that will not meet minimum front yard setback requirements. Mrs. Mitton explained that they could not move the addition back any further because it would not leave enough headroom for a stairway to a second story addition for which they have already received a permit. They are unable to put the addition in the rear of the present structure because of the need for the stairway and also because they have recently put a new septic system in the backyard. The proposed addition would include a basement since the home currently has only a crawlspace cellar from which the septic system feeds.

Dan Croteau, 149 Haverhill St., temporarily withdrew his petition for a special permit to allow the construction of a two and one half story addition that would consist of three apartments. Croteau stated that he felt it necessary to do more planning and preparation of his case before presenting it to the board and public.

neighbors during the fall and winter.

Crowe said that such screening was planned.

"Will I see that building at night?" asked Koch. "Because if I can't, I'll be happy."

"You will be aware of the building," said Crowe—but he added that the company would do its best to minimize that awareness by thickening the existing woods at its borders.

The board recommended approval of the plans, adding the conditions that Raytheon participate in necessary traffic studies and remedies, and that the company install landscape screening

Glenwood Road Variance Request Meets Objection

By Karen L. Day

A petition regarding a piece of property on the Glenwood Road Extension, near Foster's Pond, brought heated argumentation from abutters before the Zoning Board of Appeals last Thursday evening.

Brian and Ann Linehan, 85 Llewellen St., Lowell, requested a variance to construct a single family residence on the property which, like all the other homes there, has no frontage on a public way.

Andrew Caffrey, Jr., counsel for the Linehans, presented what appeared to be a simple case. He explained that a similar request by the Linehans had been denied, without prejudice, by the board in early April. The board asked them to distribute the land of the three lots they owned, and an "unknown" plot of land more equitably. Due to a faulty deed, the ownership of the "unknown" property could be questionable.

Now the Linehans would like to join the two remaining lots to create a building lot, and would turn the "unknown" land over to the either the owner of the lot they sold or to AVIS, the Andover Village Improvement Society, for conservation.

By joining two lots, which were purchased separately, they would meet all zoning requirements except the need for frontage on a public way. Septic testing has recently been done and the results were "excellent," according to Caffrey.

When Jane Griswold, acting chairman of the board, asked for any comments in opposition to the petition, a number of abutters asked questions and presented arguments.

Jeffrey Picard, 8 Glenwood Road Extension, commented that the "area is being congested" and asked "what's so different from the last petition?" Although three lots and the "unknown" piece of land were included on the first petition, the Linehans changed it to the two lots and "unknown" land during the first hearing, so it was the same request as far as he was concerned. Petitioners are required to wait two years before they can resubmit the same petition. He also asked the board how the abutters could be sure that the house would be built in the way it was being presented to the board.

Although she did not comment on the two-year wait period before resubmission until it was brought up by another abuttor later in the meeting, Griswold did explain that the board could make the drawings the Linehans presented to the board part of the decision, so that they would be required to build the home in the location shown on the sketches.

David Brown, 11 Glenwood Road Extension, commented that the Linehans sold the third lot of land after the board told them to include it in an equitable redistribution. Atty. Caffrey stated that the third lot already had a home on it and was thus of no use in redistribution. In addition, the lot was already under agreement to be sold at the time of the last hearing, which is why they removed it from consideration at that hearing.

Brown also commented that the area is "already above density" and that there have been no new homes built in the area in 40 years. He stated that the homes presently on the Glenwood Road Extension were originally summer homes that have been added on to.

Griswold agreed that the area is congested, saying "I don't know what the answers are down there," but concluded that "this lot is already above an acre," and thus met requirements for the single residence C district.

Robert Brintz, 7 Fern Road, brought up the two-year wait period specifically,

Lunch Prices Increased

By Karen L. Day

School lunch prices were increased among other items acted upon and discussed at the school committee meeting last week.

School System Business Manager

Frank Paul submitted a request that the committee approve increases in the cost of meals served by the Food Service Department.

The department closed fiscal year 1986 with a $12,248 operating deficit. According to Paul, prices have been stable for the last four years, but now, due to the expected rise in food and labor costs, an increase is necessary.

Paul proposed that the cost of all student lunches be raised from 75 cents to 85 cents. He pointed out that the proposed cost is "still lower than neighboring communities." Other area communities, including Dracut, Methuen and North Reading, are already charging 85 cents for elementary school lunches and anywhere between 85 cents and one dollar for secondary school lunches.

It was also proposed that the cost of adult lunches be raised from $1.25 to $1.35 and the cost of a-la-carte items be increased five cents, from 20 to 25 cents.

Before the committee voted on the proposal, Donald Robb, committee secretary, asked if the program's losses reflected just school lunches. Paul explained that the snack bar and adult lunches were included in the program's operating deficit figure.

Committee member Susan Poore commented that "it's always hard to raise prices" but there seemed to be no alternative, and the prices would still be within the range, if not lower, than other area school systems.

The committee voted unanimously to accept the increases stated in Paul's proposal.

Featured In Boston Festival

For the third consecutive year, Andrea Marino, 10, will be flying above the masses in Boston's North End for the Fisherman's Feast on Sunday, Aug. 17, at 7 p.m. Andrea, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Marino, 9 Spruce Circle, carrying on a family tradition, will recite a poem, in Italian, honoring Madonna Del Soccorso, the fishermen's protector, as she flies from a third story window on North St. (with the aid of a strong cable) near Fleet St. "The Flight of the Angel" is the culmination of the procession of the Madonna through the streets of the North End beginning at noontime. The feast period begins on Aug. 14 and runs through Aug. 18, with numerous ceremonies, processions, and band performances. Andrea's father, James, commented that the ceremony is "really incredible if you've never seen it... it's a spectacle you wouldn't expect to see."

On Aug. 13, a premier screening of "Ave Maria: the Story of the Fisherman's Feast" will be held at Nucleo Eclettico, 216 Hanover St., in the North End. There is no admission fee for the documentary which will be shown at 7:30 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Over 100 children and 15 counselors from the Department of Community Services participated in the annual sand sculpture contest at Crane's Beach in Ipswich. The annual event is sponsored by the Ipswich Recreation Department. During previous years, Andover has taken first (1984) and second (1985) places over children from 17 other communities. This year, Andover's theme was "Summer Fads." A Legend

An Andover legend, J. Everett Collins, died this past week after 92 years filled with providing service and joy to his native community he so loved.

Pictured above, Collins is expressing appreciation to the town for the naming of the Performing Arts Center at Andover High School in his honor during September 1983 dedication exercises.

Known for many accomplishments, such as selectman, school committeeman, state representative, etc, in the area of public service, it was his avocation that endeared him to not only Andover residents but those in the Merrimack Valley as well.

For over a half-century he led the Andover Male Choir and Andover Choral Society in the annual presentation of "The Messiah" at Christmas time.

For many years he worked with junior high and high school pupils in directing their musical endeavors.

An accomplished athlete in his day, Collins is the only person to be enshrined in both the Andover Athletic and Fine Arts Halls of Fame.

A gentle, ever-present smile, under a shock of white hair, was the greeting to all from this man who entertained thousands with his voice, choral direction and just plain presence.

It is fitting that he was present for the dedication of the Performing Arts Center bearing his name a few years ago. It is even more appropriate that we are left with that permanent memory of a man who meant so much and brought such happiness to the town he loved.

Down The Years

75 years Ago — August 1911

There is a new infirmary at Phillips. This is the latest announcement made by those in charge of affairs at the big educational institution. Just where it will be located, and just what form it will take is not yet fully determined.

The actual work of placing telephone wires underground is under way here in Andover. This improvement has been a long time coming, but there is evidence that the present progressive management of the New England Telephone Company is awake to the importance, both from the standpoint of service and the standpoint of economy.

The tax rate of Andover as fixed at $16.50 per $1,000 occasions very little comment, but it deserves to occasion a great deal. We have been in the habit of having conservative town management give to us a satisfactory tax rate for so many years, that we don't know how to fully appreciate such an announcement as this, but if we will only take into account the increasing rate in many cities and towns, we will find abundant reason for a deal of congratulations to the town, to the assessors, and to the taxpayers.

While bathing in Pomp's Pond on Monday afternoon, an employee of Brooks F. Holt, the local ice man, was drowned. The accident occurred at 3:30 p.m. in the presence of several of the workman's friends who were unable to render assistance to the drowning man.

50 Years Ago—August 1936

One of the most shameful sights seen in Andover in many years was the spectacle on Wednesday noon of three of the town's most prominent men standing outside of the Andover Lunch plastered. Even the chief of police was half-plastered and one of our selectmen was very obviously getting many black marks chalked up against his character. But let's not be horrified, folks, they were plastered—no doubt of that—but it was plastered with soot. A big truck happened by at the time, and suddenly, the men saw each other's clothes change from plain colors to polka dot affairs with many little pinpoints of soot.

With but a very small percentage of TOWNSMAN readers having cast their ballots in the nationwide poll being conducted by small town weeklies, Governor Alf M. Landon has already rolled up a good lead here in Andover. Of 69 ballots returned this week, 62 were for Landon, six for Roosevelt and one for Lemke.

All the tournaments which have been conducted during this season at the three playgrounds in town close tonight and prizes will be given next week at the carnivals. The tournaments included jackstones, checkers, territory, nine toss and sand building.

25 Years Ago — August 1961

The results of the League of Women Voters town-wide survey proved one thing beyond a doubt—Andover residents don't like present real estate taxes.

Town Manager Thomas E. Duff is hopeful that the Rogers Brook project will be continued. Noting that normal business activities in the state Waterways Division seem to have come to a halt during recent investigations of the department head, Duff indicated that there should be no real reason why the Rogers Brook project should not be finally approved and undertaken.

A remarkable addition of 37 acres of picturesque flood land and woodland to the Deer Jump Reservation in West Andover is announced by the Andover Village Improvement Society. Acquired from Arthur and Natalie Stansfield, the additional acreage greatly widens the section of

A week from tomorrow, Friday, Aug. 22, there will be a pot luck luncheon at the senior center at 11:30 a.m. Do call to let them know you are coming and to tell them what you plan to bring. If you are having trouble deciding, they will be happy to give you suggestions. If it is not possible to bring anything, you will still be welcome, but you will have to contribute $3 for the opportunity to partake of the food of Andover's very best cooks. In any case, you need to make a reservation. Bingo follows at 1 p.m.

Tomorrow is the end of the summer hot lunch program. The school lunch program will resume Thursday, Sept. 4, at 12 noon.

Have you purchased your tickets for the chicken barbecue to be held at the center Thursday, Aug. 28, at 12 noon? They cost $4.50. In addition to super, typical barbecue food, there will be entertainment—line dancing, a live band and, weather permitting, lawn games. You're sure to have fun. Wind up the summer with a good party, and your presence can make it that.

Boston-Lawrence bus schedules are available at the center for your convenience.

The staff at the center is planning a film series this fall. Because of a number of successful fund-raising endeavors, the Council on Aging has been able to purchase a wide-screen video on which to show films. So now, we need your suggestions and recommendations for films. It is expected that films will be shown each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, a definite schedule of time to be announced. But, it is now that you should be putting in your requests for the films you'd like to see. Call the center at 470-3830.

Every Wednesday afternoon you may have your blood pressure checked at the senior center free of charge. Just stop by between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Did you know you can play Pokeno every Wednesday at the center? Games begin at 1 p.m. and all are welcome.

For those of you who are trip-minded, the Carver trip to the Edaville Railroad September 9 still has room. Cost is $20, which includes lunch, entertainment, a ride on the train, their museum and more. The "Stars of the Lawrence Welk Show" on Tuesday, Sept. 16, is nearly sold out. Only a few places left, but we would like to have you be one of the few more. Cost, including luncheon, is $27. The Eastern States Exposition trip on September 18 costs $15 which includes transportation and admission. Call the center for further information.

requested that the committee drop the high school diploma requirement of CPR certification. The basics of CPR are taught at the junior high school level, when students are not eligible for certification due to age. When students are certifiable at the high school level, certification lasts only one year, and the students may or may not choose to be recertified once out of the school system. Seifert commented that the program "is time consuming and doesn't achieve" what it was initially intended to.

Seifert also commented that the overall health program in Andover schools has not been examined and appraised in the last ten years. "It will need to be looked at in the next couple of years," he said.

Since there is no legal requirement, the committee agreed to delete CPR certification from the graduation requirements, at least until the entire health program is examined, when the board may choose to reinstate it.

Committee Chairman Michael Giammusso presented a draft of a direction letter regarding a master plan for the schools. This letter, once revised, will be sent out to Andover residents asking them to become involved in the analysis and development of school programs.

Committee member Richard Neal commented that they need to commit themselves to the idea that a master plan should not just be "an exercise on paper." He emphasized that "we need to have a plan that not only meets financial needs, but additional needs of the system...it's not easy to come by."

Robb suggested that the letter "state long-range research/development program needs" because it is "a fundamental part of the process each year."

Neal expressed the need for the committee to decide exactly what processes are necessary to put a master plan together. Giammusso agreed that they should set ground rules early on in the coming school year.

The board accepted the idea of the letter, and plans to use it once the revisions have been made by Giammusso.

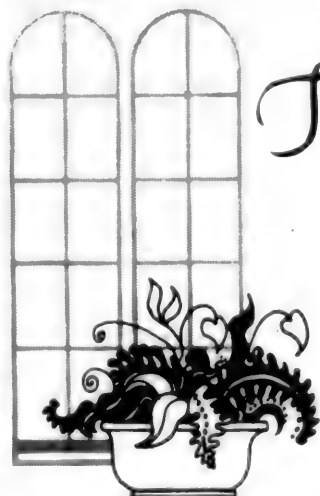

Another topic of discussion was the curriculum policy Robb had revised since its first pass at the last school committee meeting. Robb thanked the other board members for their comments which helped him rewrite the policy.

Giammusso commented that there is a difference between curriculum differences among schools and some teachers who have a slightly different approach to that curriculum than most.

Susan Poore agreed that the term "modification does not suggest a pilot program."

Fashion Show

To benefit The American Cancer Society, Dick Kapelson, president of KAPS men's store, a retail men's clothing chain centered in Lawrence, Swampscott and Burlington, announced that KAPS is sponsoring this year's annual fashion show on Saturday, Aug. 23, at 4 p.m. at The 40 Steps House, 391 Nahant Road, Nahant. A buffet dinner will be served. The American Cancer Society hopes to reach their goal of $10,000-$15,000.

The second draft of the curriculum policy was accepted by the committee unanimously.

Superintendent Seifert informed the committee that the system is in "a very good position in filling" vacancies before the school year begins. The five permanent substitute teacher positions are filled. He stated that the recent resignation of an Industrial Arts teacher left an opening at the high school that "may be difficult to fill."

Glenwood

stating that the Linenans were supposed to redivide the four lots, but were now submitting the same petition again.

Griswold explained that since new sketches of house location were now available, one lot had been sold, and septic testing had been completed, the petition was quite different than the first, and, thus, could be considered before a two-year wait.

Brintz also stated that the petition did not show the required type of hardships, like shape or topography of land. He mentioned that there was a similar case in the last two years that had been denied, and that the board should follow the precedent.

Caffrey then reiterated that "equitable distribution was not possible" and that "they (the Linehans) are unable to help themselves" in regard to the lack of frontage on a public way.

Caffrey answered Brintz's comment about lack of hardship by stating that the couple have a "hardship in location" and are paying taxes on the two lots of land as if they owned two homes. "Without a variance," he said, "the land is worthless, and thus, a financial hardship."

A couple of the abutters were admonished by Griswold when they asked to address the board again, but only repeated their arguments. She invited them to speak if they had "something new" to add, but that repetition would not serve any purpose but to keep the meeting going "all night."

Lawns

Late summer, from mid-August to mid-September, is the best time for seeding a lawn in this area. Weed growth is less of a problem and the cool weather is ideal for turf. By the time winter arrives, the lawn will be fairly well established and ready to grow next spring.

A mixture of grasses is best to ensure the longevity of a lawn. A monoculture of one particular type of grass will be much more susceptible to insect and disease problems. For average lawn conditions use a mixture that is 50 percent Kentucky bluegrass varieties and 50 percent red fescue varieties. Avoid mixtures containing more than 10 percent other grasses such as ryegrass or redtop. A higher percentage of bluegrass will result in a coarser texture and darker green color. Zoysia is not recommended in New England because it requires a long, warm season for satisfactory growth, is very late to green up in the spring and turns brown with the first frost. On steep slopes include 20-30 percent of a quick growing temporary grass to hold the soil until the other grasses are established. To hold the seed in place, cover the slope with salt marsh hay or a coarse mesh cloth which will rot away in a season.

Andover Gold, 5-3

It took five days to actually finish this game, which was postponed once by rain, postponed a second time by tornado warnings, and suspended for two days by a severe thunderstorm.

Andover Gold, bidding for its fifth league championship in the last six years and its second consecutive Greater-Reading Pony League title, advanced to the best-of-three playoff finals following a tense 5-3 victory over the Stoneham Cubs earlier this week at Andover High.

Prior to that Gold had knocked the Wilmington Wildcats from playoff consideration, riding a strong pitching performance by righthander Keith Abernathy to a 6-2 victory at AHS.

The two wins stretched AG's victory streak through nine games, hiked the East Division champs' overall record to 15-2-2, and put them up against the East Division regular-season runner-up Reading Astros for the championship.

That best-of-3 series was scheduled to begin last night, with game two this evening (5:30 p.m.) at Reading High. If a third game is necessary it will be played Saturday at Andover High, the time to be determined later.

A combined squad of Andover Blue and Gold 14- and 15-year-old players will also compete in the annual Winthrop Babe Ruth Invitational Tournament (double-elimination) beginning tomorrow night.

Blue-Gold faces two-time defending tourney champ East Boston in its opener at 5:30 p.m.

Other teams in the tournament include Chel-

Gold

The first 2½ innings were completed last Saturday, with Gold grabbing a 4-0 lead, and the final 4½ innings were played Monday night with Stoneham battling back to make it interesting.

Undefeated righthander Joe Lyons (2-0-1) was the winning pitcher, tossing 4-2/3 frames of three-hit ball. Lyons struck out four and walked four.

Ace fireman Scott Wallace came on to register a team-record seventh save of the season, surrendering a two-run double to the first batter he faced and then retiring the last seven Cubs' hitters in order to preserve the semifinal round triumph.

While Lyons had Stoneham baffled in the first three innings, permitting one harmless single and whiffing three, Gold threatened in the first and then erupted in the second.

Andy Shea led off the first inning with a sharp single, took second on a wild pitch, and moved to third on Scott Wallace's sacrifice bunt. He was stranded there, however, after a shallow fly ball and strikeout.

Gold took advantage of Stoneham complete-game pitcher Steve Hegarty's wildness to key its second-inning uprising.

Gold batted around in the stanza, leaving the bases loaded, and the lone hit was an RBI single by Chris Patten.

Barry Connors added a sacrifice fly, there were walks to Mark Tucker, Glenn Farnham, Keith Abernathy, Wallace and Tom Murray, and the Cubs committed a costly infield error as well.

Stoneham fought back with three runs in the fifth, doing the damage with two walks, two singles and Kevin O'Connell's two-run double to the opposite field.

However, with the tying and lead runs at second and third, Wallace bore down to force the next batter to sky out to rightfielder Barry Connors.

Wallace set down the last six batters in order, allowing just one ball out of the infield, and he also received some help from second baseman Andy Shea who made a spectacular diving catch for the first out in the seventh.

Gold added an insurance run in the bottom of the sixth when Glenn Farnham drilled a one-out single to rightfield, stole second, and eventually crossed on Keith Abernathy's clutch two-out flare single to right.

Tom Murray produced AG's other basehit, a fifth-inning single, and he also made a superb diving catch in centerfield moments before the thunderstorm hit on Saturday.

Rightfielder Connors and catcher Chris Concemi added solid defensive performances for the errorless Gold, while Mike Giammasi made a fine scoop at first base to end the game.

Andover Gold, 6-2

Keith Abernathy improved his pitching record to 2-0 by scattering five hits, fanning seven and permitting only one earned run in the route-going effort against the Wilmington Wildcats.

Gold inched ahead 1-0 in the bottom of the first as leadoff batter Andy Shea ripped a single, was bunted to second by Scott Wallace, took third on a passed ball, and scored on Chris Concemi's two-out single.

Wilmington touched Abernathy for three of its five singles in the top of the first, but failed to score when centerfielder Tom Murray gunned down yet another opposing runner at the plate.

The Wildcats did pull even 1-1 in the top of the third, scoring without benefit of a hit, but AG retaliated in the home half when Chris Lane slapped a single, stole second, took third on Scott Wallace's single, and raced home on Murray's sacrifice fly.

Wilmington re-tied it 2-2 in the fourth, but Andover Gold countered with four of its own in the fourth to put the game away.

Putting You First Made Us Number One

Why do more people choose The Emergency Department at St. John's Hospital over any other medical facility in the Greater Lowell area?

Is it because they know that any health problem, large or small, is thoroughly cared for by our staff, well known for its excellence, at a facility equipped for any emergency? Perhaps.

Because we're here to help you any hour of the day or night, every day of the year? Possibly.

Because our Emergency Department is so easy to get to from anywhere in Greater Lowell, and from surrounding cities and towns? Maybe.

It could be a combination of all of these reasons. But we think it's something even more.

What's made our Emergency Department Number One is what started St. John's Hospital over a century ago...an uncommon dedication to common courtesy and a devotion to the notion of caring.

So if you or your family need emergency treatment, choose what most of your neighbors choose. The Emergency Department at St. John's Hospital.

J.G. Levis Electric 10

Tyler Construction 8

A well played game by both teams saw the Levis score three runs in the sixth inning to clinch their victory over Tyler. Tyler's Michelle Morey, Meg Workman and Jen Ashlock had three hits each, but Tyler couldn't score enough runs in the early innings to insure a win. Pitching for Tyler were Rachel Buonopane, Amy Cassidy, Susan Hoffman and Jinju Jou.

J.G. Levis Electric 14 - Royal Realty 7

J.G. Levis had two strong innings in the first and third to take a ten-run lead and never looked back. Sarah Dziadul of the Royals tripled in the sixth to drive in two runs. Tara Wrobel and Kristie Barrows assisted by driving in two more runs before the Levis made a quick defensive play at shortstop to stop Jennifer Thomson's hit and end the Royals' rally. Vanessa Blank did a great job for the Royals, pitching her first game and playing tough defense all the way.

R&R Roofing 6 - Tyler Construction 2

R&R Roofing's outstanding defensive work checked a strong Tyler offense, keeping Tyler to only two runs in this game. Tyler was unable to convert strong hitting by Michelle Morey, Jen Monroe, Lani Johnson and Amy Cassidy into additional runs. Good pitching by Morey, Cheryl Ruterhouse, Jen Lewis and effective defensive plays by Amy Cassidy and Susan Hoffman kept Tyler in this game all the way.

Mark Tucker led the rally with a single to centerfield, Glenn Farnham launched an RBI triple to right, Joe Lyons laid down a perfect suicide squeeze bunt and reached second base on a throwing error, Barry Connors ripped an RBI double to center, and Chris Lane lashed an RBI single to centerfield.

Wilmington threatened in the sixth, but shortstop Scott Wallace initiated Gold's 11th double-play of the season to get Abernathy out of trouble.

The Wildcats' other two hits came in the seventh, but Abernathy also finished with a flourish by striking out the side in that stanza.

Chris Lane went 2-for-3 to pace the balanced eight-hit Gold assault.

Wallace was the defensive standout, handling five chances flawlessly.

Sting Wins International Tourney

The Andover Sting came in first place Sunday in an International Invitational Tournament in Randolph, beating a team from Merten, West Germany, 3-2 in the second overtime of the fifth and final game of the tournament. Other teams were from Randolph, Franklin, Weymouth, Canton and Hanson-Whitman. Two divisions were established: Division I, consisting of Andover, Weymouth and Franklin, and Division II, which included Randolph, Canton, Hanson-Whitman and the West Germans. Finalists from each division had to play off to determine the overall winner. Divisional winners were determined by total points earned, with Andover receiving six out of eight possible points, thus winning their division and setting them up for the final game with the Germans who went undefeated in their division.

Andover's first game in this evenly-matched tournament saw Weymouth defeated 1-0 on a beautiful header from Tom Ciolfi, assist to Mike Hardock, in front of Weymouth's net in the final minute of the game.

The second game, against Franklin, ended in a 0-0 tie due to excellent Andover defense by Tim Hagerty, A.J. Boucher, Jim Murphy and Ray Mann and great goaltending from Rob Stoltz.

Game number three was a rematch with Franklin with Andover winning 1-0 on a goal by Steve Napolitano from Bob Hughes on an indirect kick. Andover also had good offensive pressure from Rich Atkinson and Paul Andersen.

Game four ended in a 0-0 tie with Weymouth. Again, excellent goaltending and defensive work from the midfield kept Weymouth from scoring as they continued to rush Andover's net. Rick Banzi, Jim Saalfrank and John Saalfrank were outstanding. By tying this game, Andover earned a playoff berth against the Germans who had won all their games.

The playoff game proved to be very even and play was aggressive. The West Germans were frustrated in their many attempts to put the ball past Andover's defense and goalkeeper. Andover scored first when Bill Martin was taken down from behind in the penalty area by a German player. Hardock took the penalty kick and beat their goalie easily. The Germans came right back and tied it up on a nice low shot to the far inside post. The first half ended in a 1-1 tie.

Andover scored first in the second half when Jeff Leonard's hustle was able to take a 50-50 ball away from the West German goalie. Leonard passed it across the uncovered net to Martin who booted it in making it Andover 2-West Germany 1. The Germans came back again late in the second half on a wing-to-wing cross and header into Andover's net, ending the game 2-2. The officials decided that the game winner would be determined after two ten-minute overtime periods.

The first 10 minutes passed with numerous attempts on each net by both teams, but West Germany's keeper and Andover's keeper, Stoltz, were equal to the task and nothing got by them.

The second ten minutes saw an all-out attempt by both teams to score. Andover scored with three minutes remaining as a result of an indirect kick. Jim Saalfrank lofted a beautiful cross to a streaking Hardock who touched it neatly behind the German goalie, making it 3-2. The Germans dug in and gave it their all, but were unable to come back again and Andover was victorious.

It is not good for all our wishes to be filled; through sickness we recognize the value of health; through evil, the value of good; through hunger, the value of food; through exertion, the value of rest.

CLASS Golf Tourney Scheduled

Nick D'Ambrosia (left) of Minolta Business Systems, Woburn, hands a pair of Minolta 35 mm cameras, donated by his company, to Harry Manzi of CLASS, Inc., at the Rolling Green Pro Shop. The cameras are among the many prizes which will be won by golfers on August 28, in the organization's fund-raising golf tournament.

CLASS, Inc., is once more mixing pleasure with the business of raising money by holding its "first annual" CLASS golf tournament on Thursday, Aug. 28, at 3 p.m. on the Rolling Green Golf Course in Andover.

The primary winners in this fundraiser will be retarded area adults served by the non-profit organization's day training programs. In addition to supporting ongoing programs at the Haverhill Street facility in Andover, money raised in this year's campaign will also help finance a new one-of-a-kind basic skills program, which will be implemented in a North Andover facility being built for the organization by Marco Rubber and Plastics. The new center should be on-line by January.

Tournament players also stand to win big. Winners among the four-man teams (limit: 18 teams), vying on nine holes behind the Sheraton Rolling Green hotel on Route 133, will receive an all-expense-paid golf weekend at the Sagamore Resort on Lake George, Bolton Landing, N. Y.

The weekend is donated by Omni Hotels and Fantasy Travel of Topsfield, and will include transportation, accommodations, breakfasts and dinners, greens fees and cart rentals. It is valued at $3,000.

For further information, or for entry forms, contact Harry Manzi at CLASS, Inc. Entry fees will include registration for drawings, favors, a steak dinner and post-tournament refreshments.

Down The Years

AVIS land near the mouth of Fish Pond and extends inland the land along the Merrimack River already owned by the organization. The society has now come into possession of one of the most fascinating beauty spots in Andover.

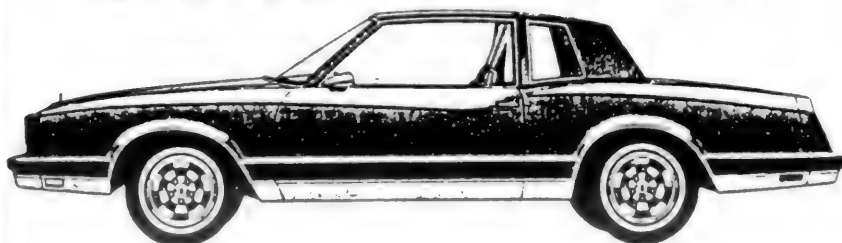

10 Years Ago — August 1976

Deputy Fire Chief William T. Downs and an assistant drove to Boston last Thursday to pick up Andover's new modular ambulance, and spent the weekend getting out the bugs and transferring the equipment from the 1969 Cadillac.

Postal officials indicate they are making some progress in working with local officials to find a site for a new postal facility in Andover. The latest site under evaluation is the property at Stevens and Main Streets, near an old railroad trestle.

Professional planners and consultants must wonder a bit when they view Andover and attempt to forecast its growth pattern. Despite continued difficult economic state in this region the town remains a very popular address as evidenced by new house starts this past fiscal year.

Head radiator repairman, Stan, at work at Leo J. Couture & Sons
Leo J. Couture & Sons: Towing, Wrecks and Radiator Repair

There are many reasons why people visit Leo J. Couture & Sons' chief radiator repairman, Stan. They might have a problem with their cooling system, a leak in their fuel tank, or a problem relating to their heater core or heater system. Whatever the reason, Stan is the man to solve the problem. Leo J. Couture & Sons offer a complete line of new replacement radiators and they also can provide you with a completely new core. If you're looking to save a few extra dollars (and who isn't?), Stan will replace your defective radiator with a new one. Not only will you save money but you'll still get a guarantee.

Stan is a busy man, summer and winter. In summer people tend to get complacent about their car care and neglect their cooling system. If you don't check your cooling system you run the risk of corrosion, clogging, leaks or worn out hoses. If the cooling system fan clutch hasn't been checked or changed in 2½ years, your car could run hot or overheat in bumper-to-bumper traffic or at speeds of 30m.p.h. or below.

Winter presents its own unique set of problems. If you don't check your antifreeze you could be caught with water in your cooling system which could lead to freezing in the hoses and the engine. So before you crack your block or blow a head gasket, see Stan, the man with the answers to your radiator problems.

In addition to radiator repair, Leo J. Couture & Sons provide a twenty-four hour towing service. They will also pay cash for your junk cars and late model wrecks, whose parts then become inventory for their junkyard. They'll be happy to come right to your door to take that wreck off your hands.

So, whether you need a tow, are buying or selling junk parts, or need a radiator repair, call Leo J. Couture & Sons at 685-9703 for radiator repair and 686-5884 or 687-9527 for other services. They're located at 54 Medford St., Lawrence (behind the Essex Street Demoulas). Monday-Friday 7-4, Saturday 7-1.

BUSINESS PROFILESAfarian Oriental Rugs: An Investment You Can Live With

As a young boy in Beirut, Lebanon, Katchik Afarian headed to work when school let out for the summer. His work required skill and patience; he repaired Oriental rugs. A prominent rug dealer from Boston, recognizing the unique quality of Katchik's work, brought him to the U.S. to continue his work.

Afarian Oriental Rug has been in business at 18 Waverly St., North Andover since 1974. They deal in antique, semi-antique and used, decorative Oriental rugs. Katchik Afarian points out that the older Oriental rugs are a better investment than the newer ones. The older rugs are made with vegetable dyes, no chemicals, while the newer rugs are made with chemical aniline dyes. In addition, the older rugs are made of a better quality wool. Mr. Afarian travels to Europe four to six times yearly to bring back selective Oriental rugs. Afarian Oriental Rug presently boasts the largest inventory of old Heriz and Serapi Orientals in the greater Boston area.

Afarian's business is not limited to buying and selling Oriental rugs. Katchik emphasizes the need to have your Oriental rug washed every two or three years. Afarian will hand wash your Oriental rug, and it will be washed with no harsh chemicals to affect its color and quality. Afarian is expert at restoring and repairing Oriental rugs. If moth-eaten they will re-nap your rug, if there are holes they'll re-weave, and they'll also re-fringe if necessary. Katchik Afarian's restoring and repairing expertise is so widely recognized that rug dealers from out of state frequently demand his services.

Afarian can also provide you with an appraisal of your Oriental rug to specify its origin and its present value. They'll give you a complete written appraisal and will photograph your rug for insurance purposes.

Every rug sold at Afarian is guaranteed 100%, and if you bring back a perfectly maintained rug within three years of your purchase, Afarian will buy back your rug at its original price or more. This guarantee is testimony to the fact that your Oriental rug is truly a valuable investment. Visit Afarian Monday-Friday 9-5, or call 688-1717 for an appointment Saturdays, Sundays or evenings.

Freshly filleted fish are removed from the conveyor at Langford Seafood Langford Seafood: Have Lobsters - Will Travel

If you're looking for the perfect gift to send to your parents in Florida, or your friends in California, or your son or daughter away at college, you may find the perfect solution in the most unlikely place - Langford Seafood. You may not be aware of it, but lobsters travel well, and Joe and Sandy Lasonde have sent lobsters all over the United States and the world, including England, Austria and Hong Kong. What better way to treat someone than to send them a delectable meal straight from the north Atlantic.

The Lasondes are not only in the lobster business, they are the area's largest wholesale and retail dealers selling quality seafood at the lowest prices. Langford Seafood has forty years of experience and they know their way around New England's fishing grounds. Joe had just returned from Maine as we spoke and said that wherever there is fresh fish, he'll find it to bring back to his customers.

If you walk through the rear door of the kitchen at Langford's you'll watch in amazement as 6600 pounds of filets may be processed in an hour. The process begins as each fish is headed, then hand fed to a machine that separates it into two filets which are then boned by hand and sent to the skinning machine before they reach your table.

Friday is a special day at Langfords because they cook seafood to order between the hours of 10:30 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. Order their English style fish and chips, clams, scallops, and onion rings that are "the best bar none," according to Sandy. Lobster meat is done to order so that it's always fresh. Langford also carries a line of prepared seafood dishes including stuffed scrod with or without cheese, stuffed haddock, lobster pies, scallop pies and stuffed shrimp. All are oven ready and carry microwave instructions.

Visit Langford Seafood at their convenient 229 So. Union St., So. Lawrence location or call 682-3791. Open M-Th 7-5, Fri 7-7, Sat 8-4. And if you're wondering about the "It's a girl!" sign in the window, Joe and Sandy are the proud grandparents of Kara Lee, their seventh grandchild.

THE "MINGLE" BUYING TREND

"Mingling" or collaborative home buying has become a national trend. The U. S. Census Bureau reports that more than 3 million people have purchased first or subsequent homes with relatives, friends and even co-workers. The most common reason is economic.

A collaborative home purchase can be more cost effective than renting an apartment on an individual basis. Two or more owners can expect to save money on food, maintenance and utility expenses. Also, a group of four people earning $25,000 each would have a combined earning power of one earning $100,000 which makes mortgage qualification easier.

In addition, the higher level of income for two or more prospective owners makes the down payment more affordable. Simple arithmetic demonstrates this. The standard down-payment on an average $100,000 home is 20%, or $20,000. For four owners, or two couples, the cost is $5,000 each. If you want to be a homeowner but can't overcome the down-payment hurdle, think about "mingle buying".

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 4 Punchard Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

CHECKING THE "COMPARABLES"

If you're trying to decide whether or not a particular property is a good investment, you can check what similar homes in the same neighborhood have sold for. This takes a lot of the guesswork out of making the right choice.

Some sales information, such as price, financing terms, and transaction date, is public information. In most areas this is published and can be found in the public library. You can find out how properties have been appreciating based on actual sales experience rather than word of mouth from neighbors (it could be inaccurate) or the hopes of the sellers (they could be very optimistic). Once you have the addresses, you can drive by each home to get some idea of how it compares to the one you're considering. If you're working with an agent, he may have seen the comparables interiors and can give you a clear idea of how they measure up.

If you're considering a move, contact the professionals at Realty USA, / Schrüender Real Estate. Call us at 685-5000 or stop by our offices at 73 Chickering Road, in North Andover.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

Joint Meeting Planned To Focus On Municipal Budget

By Karen L. Day

Out of a discussion of the school committee's fiscal policy last Tuesday evening, there came about the planning of a meeting between the school committee, the finance committee and the selectmen to discuss their budgetary needs jointly.

It all began when School Committeeman Richard Neal presented the first draft of a fiscal policy for the committee. In this draft, he stated that the committee would request financing for "unanticipated increases or retroactive rate changes exceeding budgetary allocations imposed" on the committee by outside agencies from the Finance Committee.

Joann Marden, chairman of the Finance Committee, commented that this would not be a good course of action, because they would have to draw money from other town accounts to meet the requests, thus leaving the other department budget(s) short. She suggested that the school committee "go back to town meeting for supplemental financing."

Committee member Susan Poore reiterated that supplemental funding would only be asked to meet unexpected bills from outside services, that the committee does not establish a program "unless we can fully fund it....We can't help it if we get a retroactive two by four upside the head from an outside agency." Marden suggested that the committee set aside a reserve fund to be used in such instances and only ask for supplemental financing when exorbitant bills come in.

School Superintendent Seifert commented that the schools "can always stay in budget," but that often means not hiring the best candidate for a position because it would cost too much. He believes that hiring the cheaper candidate may help the schools stay within an established budget, but it causes "dysfunction in our operation" as educators.

Michael Giammusso, school committee chairman, suggested that dates be more firmly established for the superintendent to submit budget needs and recommendations to the committee and for the committee to have acted on the recommendations by. Initial discussions could be planned for October, according to Poore, so that the school budget would be complete closer to the time the town manager's is.

Poore stated that it would be helpful to both the schools and the town if capital plans of both were "weighed on the same scale." She suggested that both sides meet in public to establish plans of equal precision and amount of detail. She expressed the opinion that having committees pitted against each other at town meeting shouldn't happen. If they could meet jointly to promote understanding of each others' needs they may be able to avoid that situation in the future.

Marden offered to organize the joint meeting for some time in October, but suggested that sub-committees be established since joint meetings of full committees could not be a consistent occurrence.
